

The Inside-Out Prison Exchange Program® began in 1997 as a semester-long university class held in a prison, involving campus-based students and incarcerated students. It was offered through Temple University in Philadelphia, and since then, has become an international program, housed at Temple, involving thousands of instructors and tens of thousands of students over the years. Inside-Out increases opportunities for men and women, inside and outside of prison, to have transformative learning experiences that emphasize collaboration and dialogue, inviting participants to take leadership in addressing crime, justice, and other issues of social concern.

Inside-Out Coaches:

We want to make special mention of a group that has developed since the pandemic – of 40 formerly incarcerated Inside-Out alumni from across the US and BC, who are hired as Temple staff to help conduct the instructor trainings (as coaches). They also co-facilitate workshops with various justice-oriented and community groups over Zoom. Those who have been, continue to be, or are in the process of becoming involved include:

Averi Adkins (WV)	April Lee (PA)
James Anderson (OR)	Jorge Lizarraga (CA)
Amber Blankenship (WV)	Kenny Matthews (WV)

Dear Friends...

We've probably all heard some version of Inside-Out's origin story. What began as an idea tossed out into the universe by Paul Perry, who is currently incarcerated at SCI-Phoenix (formerly SCI-Graterford), became a semester-long class in the Fall of 1997. The program expanded and multiplied over the years into hundreds of classes across the US and in several countries. The 30 students in that first class in 1997 grew exponentially to 60,000 students over these 25+ years. However, as with so many things, numbers are only part of the story.

Inside-Out classes allow incarcerated men and women and campus-based students to come together for a semester to dialogue about all sorts of topics and issues, focused in some form or fashion on social justice. But Inside-Out is much more than just a class. What happens over the semester is a depth of learning and exploring that is extraordinary, far beyond the specific content of the course. Everyone involved – students from the outside, from the inside, and the instructor – discovers dimensions of themselves, of others, and of life that they had never imagined possible. We each uncover our own inner voice, while we invite the voices of others to emerge. At the same time, we recognize the many ways that we are each imprisoned, as we call forth each other to find a new sense of freedom. We do this through the crucible of dialogue, by which – with both courage and conviction – we move beyond the walls that separate us.

We have watched as more than 1,400 instructors from throughout the US and 14 other countries have come to one of our 90 intensive, weeklong trainings – and left ready and eager to begin to take this methodology on the road, putting their unique stamp on the classes that they create. We envision it as the sowing of seeds – the kind of seeds that can make real and lasting change in the world, through a change in the hearts and minds of individuals and communities. It is less about a change in opinion; much more, a change in perspective – seeing realities that surround us in new and fresh ways. And we understand ourselves to be instrumental in making change happen.

We have also watched as Inside-Out has grown from a very small operation to a quite sizable global program with a base of support from an ever-widening network of inside and outside alumni, instructors, correctional partners, higher education administrators, foundations, and friends of the program. Inside-Out has grown over the years in a natural and organic way. Its growth has been – and continues to be – influenced by those who get involved in the program. We are so grateful for and humbled by the incredible people who have been involved over the years. Literally, Inside-Out would not be what it is today without all of us – and the heart, soul, and passion that we each bring to its ongoing creation.

Finally, on a personal note, over the years, various people have said to me: “Lori, this must be like a dream come true!” Actually, I have to admit – it is not... simply because I never could have dreamed such a thing, for myself or anyone else. To be honest, that's what makes it all so much more wonderful.

Let's continue to do great things!

Lori

Inside-Out Trainings

Inside-Out is a model of transformative education. Its unique methodology is consistent across all of its practices, whether classes, think tanks, workshops, conferences, or trainings. The program inspires and produces change in those involved – college/university students, prison/jail participants, and instructors alike. Inside-Out has a growing international network of educators who are taking this pedagogy forward in their own areas, both in geography and discipline. It has been exciting to see this expanding network take shape over the years, as new instructors apply their own insight and creativity to the practice of the Inside-Out teaching model.

The Training Institute is a comprehensive weeklong, intensive training program that covers everything necessary to develop a course in the Inside-Out model: curriculum development, setting parameters, institutional relationships, group dynamics, interactive pedagogical approaches, self-reflection, and so much more. Nearly half of the training provides an opportunity to learn this transformative educational method through hands-on experience, dialogue, and engagement with either currently or formerly incarcerated Inside-Out alumni who have years of experience in the Inside-Out methodology. Training is followed by consultation to assist in on-site program development.

States with Inside-Out Instructors

Since 2004, when the first Training Institute was offered, we have conducted 90 such trainings, involving 1,400+ instructors from 49 states and 14 other countries (e.g., Australia, Canada, Denmark, England, Mexico, Norway, Scotland). In the process, our currently and formerly incarcerated coaches have enhanced and expanded their training and leadership abilities, providing distinctive expertise in course design and facilitation techniques. As we continue the trainings into the future, we are also working on several types of adaptations of the model for various kinds of groups and areas of interest (e.g., community-based learning, training of college instructors interested in teaching non-blended courses in prison, training of correctional staff in dialogue skills, training of prison/jail volunteers and teachers, etc.). Inside-Out’s focus on dialogue across difference provides a powerful and refreshing alternative to the conventional ways that people come together to grapple with issues of social justice.

“I learned more this week about learning than I ever have in formal education. I learned in a very powerful way the importance of process. Too often we get caught up in outcomes (which are important), but spend little time reflecting on how we learn. I am absolutely blown away by what I now consider the best learning experience of my life.”

(Inside-Out Instructor, reflecting on the weeklong training)

“...I also feel like I have found a community that I did not know existed. It is a gift to be surrounded by people who understand what I am saying when I talk about prisons... people that I don’t have to explain everything to. And the training has stirred up an intellectual excitement that I have not felt in years.”

(Inside-Out Instructor, reflecting on the weeklong training)

Inside-Out Think Tanks Over the Years

Think Tanks are groups of Inside-Out alumni (both incarcerated and non-incarcerated) and Inside-Out instructors who meet regularly on a volunteer basis at a correctional facility. The groups form organically, based on local interests and initiatives, and are a testament to the civic engagement, human connection, and sense of agency that Inside-Out courses inspire. The following is a partial list of Think Tanks that have existed in the past and/or are presently meeting. As with many things, the pandemic severely limited the ability of most groups to continue meeting. Some of those groups, for various reasons, have not continued to meet.

A.C.E. (Another Chance at Education) Think Tank

(Oregon State Penitentiary in Salem, OR / University of Oregon)

Arizona Transformation Project Think Tank

(Arizona State Prison Complex – Florence / Arizona State University)

“Inside-Out is a platform. One of many stepping stones I’m utilizing to make myself a better person. I’m finding that I can do the work of college level courses and even do well. This is an empowering feeling and I’m grateful to all those who’ve made this opportunity possible.” (Inside Student)

“As a classroom full of radically different people, we were able to bond, and engage in some very in-depth analysis of the criminal justice system and society in which we live. It is now our job as the students, whose eyes have now been opened... to go out and create positive and necessary change.” (Outside Student)

“How do you put into words something that absolutely left you speechless? How do you properly give it the weight that it deserves? The hardest part of this whole experience is not that it’s over, but that it’s just begun. It just cannot end here.” (Outside Student)

“I learned a lot from the course about myself. For example: my ability to socialize with people of different ethnic groups, creeds, nationalities, and social status. Like this light being turned on in a vacuum of pitch-blackness, the Inside-Out program has given me hope and filled me with optimism about the future.” (Inside Student)

“The knowledge gained throughout this amazing program will remain with me forever. I cannot believe how much my life, perspective, and perceptions have changed throughout this short span of time, and how incredible it makes me feel. ... I now see a new road ahead of me, a road that I have been made aware of by this class, and one that I feel so passionate in taking.” (Outside Student)

The Inside-Out Experience

Inside-Out in the Media

Inside-Out classes, think tanks, workshops, conferences, and other gatherings regularly receive attention in print, radio, and television, with many more than 1,000 news pieces appearing across North America, Europe, and Australia featuring the Inside-Out model. Below are some selected media sources, not including university and college publications. This is an, admittedly, very partial list.

- All Things Considered (NPR)
- Lumina Foundation Magazine
- VICE Media LLC
- OzTrek (Australia)
- Life Matters: Australia Broadcasting Corp.
- The Toronto Star (Canada)
- The Copenhagen Post (Denmark)
- BBC News (U.K.)
- The Journal (U.K.)
- Arizona Correctional Educators (AZ)
- Arkansas Democrat-Gazette (AR)
- Rome News-Tribune (GA)
- The Indianapolis Star (IN)
- WISH TV (IN)
- Topeka Capital-Journal (KS)
- Associated Press, The Kansan (KS)
- The Boston Globe (MA)
- The Providence Journal (MA)
- The Detroit Free Press (MI)
- The Michigan Journal (MI)
- St. Paul Pioneer Press (MN)
- The Star-Ledger (NJ)
- Corrections Today (NY)
- Cincinnati Magazine (OH)
- The Athens News (OH)
- The Eugene Register Guard (OR)
- Bend Weekly (OR)
- NewsWorks (NPR, PA)
- Radio Times (NPR, PA)
- The Philadelphia Inquirer (PA)
- The Tennessean (TN)
- Tennessee Bar Association Today (TN)
- HBCU Digest (VA)

The Inside-Out Center has significantly increased its social media presence in the past several years. The Center now regularly posts to Facebook, X (formerly Twitter), Instagram, and LinkedIn. Facebook posts are typically viewed between 500 and 3000 times, and they generally receive between 25 to 75 engagements (i.e., comments, liking, etc.). Over 200 new individuals followed Inside-Out on Facebook in the last year, bringing the total to 2,125. The new X / Twitter account now has 1,840 followers and the new Instagram account earned 30 new followers just this month, bringing the total to 1,224 who are following the account.

In addition to social media efforts, The Inside-Out Center produced several podcasts featuring different aspects of the Inside-Out story. The episodes can be accessed via our website (insideoutcenter.org/podcast-inside-out.html).

The various media efforts carried out by The Inside-Out Center have served to both increase public awareness of the program and related justice issues, while providing platforms for members of the Inside-Out network to share news, updates, and inspiring stories.

Over the years, hundreds of individuals have made generous donations to the Inside-Out program -- far too many to mention here. We are so appreciative of the alumni, instructors, family and friends of those involved in the program, and others who have helped -- and continue to help -- to keep the program going, including those who give to Inside-Out on a monthly basis.

Please consider contributing to The Inside-Out Prison Exchange Program®.

Your gift means that our exciting new initiatives will continue to take shape, and it will bring an unforgettable, life-changing experience to inside and outside students involved in the program around the world. You can contribute in two ways, online or by check. Please visit this page on our website for more information:
